

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G.# 72-9-27 Building Date: circa 1910

Building Name: Samuel Towles/Lawrence Brooks House

Location: 708 59th Avenue, Fairmount Heights, Md.

Private/Residence/Occupied/Fair/Inaccessible

Description:

The Towles/Brooks House is two-and-one-half-story crossgable frame dwelling, presently covered with red asphalt bricktex. Entrance is in the third bay of the three-bay main east gable front, sheltered by a one-story hip-roof porch with turned bracketed posts and continuous X-pattern railing which wraps around the north elevation as far as the crossgable. Windows are 2/2 double hung sash with plain board surrounds; the plain boxed cornice is returned at the gable ends, and all trim is painted white.

Significance:

The Samuel Towles/Lawrence Brooks House, typical of the modest crossgable dwellings of the early 20th century, was built circa 1910 by Samuel Towles shortly after he purchased two unimproved lots from developer Robinson White. Members of the Towles family have remained in the house to the present day. Samuel Towles, like many others who settled in Fairmount Heights, commuted into the Federal City, working as a messenger for the U. S. Department of the Treasury. Samuel Towles' house is now owned and occupied by his nephew, Lawrence Brooks, who served as Mayor of Fairmount Heights from 1967 to 1972. The house is typical of the modest crossgable dwellings of the early 20th century; it is noticeable in that it retains some of its late Victorian decorative detail.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Samuel Towles/Lawrence Brooks House is a good example of the modest crossgable houses built in developing urban areas early in this century. It was built circa 1910 on one of the lots of the Fairmount Heights subdivision.

The Town of Fairmount Heights is located just outside the easternmost point of the District of Columbia in Prince George's County, Maryland; it is composed of a group of early twentieth-century subdivisions that form one of the earliest planned communities for blacks in the Washington, D. C., area. The community began with the Fairmount Heights subdivision in 1900, followed by five adjoining subdivisions, the last being Sylvan Vista platted in 1923. The Town was incorporated in 1935, and grew steadily through the years before World War II.

The land which was to become Fairmount Heights consisted, during the late nineteenth century, principally of parts of the small farms of John H. Wilson, John and Caroline Silence, Samuel Hoover, Mosby Brown and John Wiessner, all clustered around the east corner of the District of Columbia. In the early years of the twentieth century, these farms were bought up and subdivided by land speculators, who then began to sell individual lots to black families, most of whom worked in the District of Columbia.

The first section of Fairmount Heights was subdivided in 1900 by Robinson White and Allen Clark (both white men) out of parts of several small farms which they had purchased from the Wilson, Godfrey, Belt and Lee families. Robinson White was a lawyer and developer who resided in the District of Columbia; Allen C. Clark was a lawyer and manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Washington, D. C. White and Clark had approximately fifty acres surveyed by County Surveyor Edward L. Latimer, and laid out in lots and streets radiating from the northeast boundary of the District of Columbia. The deep, narrow lots were generally 25 by 125 feet; two of the streets were named for these first two developers. Sale of lots began almost immediately, and within a few years, dwellings were constructed and a community began to form.

From the beginning, blacks were encouraged to buy lots and settle in the new community. White and Clark sold the lots at relatively low prices, making home ownership finally attainable for black families. Most of the earliest purchasers of lots worked for government agencies; many built their own houses, or relied on friends and family to help with construction. Many families were quick to seize the opportunity to move out of the city, determined to progress, by hard work and amid healthful surroundings, toward a better life.

The earliest dwellings were of frame construction, modest in size and form, and many of these have not survived. Within a few years, however, several interesting and substantial houses were constructed for individuals who would make significant contributions to the development of Fairmount Heights.

The Towles/Brooks House, typical of the modest crossgable dwellings of the early 20th century, was built circa 1910 by Samuel Towles shortly after he purchased two unimproved lots from developer Robinson White. Members of the Towles family have remained in the house to the present day. Samuel Towles, like many others who settled in Fairmount Heights, commuted into the Federal City, working as a messenger for the U. S. Department of the Treasury.

Samuel Towles' house is now owned and occupied by his nephew, Lawrence Brooks, who served as Mayor of Fairmount Heights from 1967 to 1972. The house is typical of the modest crossgable dwellings of the early 20th century; it is noticeable in that it retains some of its late Victorian decorative detail.
